Scenes & Props

Home Office Composition

Renderings are not an exact representation of the final props, set, or lighting. They are meant to show the layout and idea of how the room could look.*

Office Look

The office will have a sophisticated look and feel with neutral wall colors and a contrasting textured wall made of a faux brick or a concrete finish. Our talent will be in focus, and the background elements will have a slight blur, so we want to give subtle pops of color and texture to the scene. To provide depth and balance to the background, we will add subtle pops of color by using a large contemporary color-blocked painting behind our main character and a floor plant to the side. The use of the overhead pendant light will also add a fun touch of movement and depth to our scene by raising vertically when the walls come apart.

OVERHEAD PENDANT LIGHT

- Vertical plant

Desk

We will use a minimal tabletop desk, so it does not take away from our characters. The desk will have subtle pops of color via accessories like a pencil holder, coffee cup, table lamp, and a small succulent plant.

Austin Studio Composition

Austin Props

The props will feel like the authentic Austin experience without being over the top or generic. When we land on Austin, the background will shift to a Goldenrod hue, planters and a mailbox will pop into the scene. A pedicab will drive through the stage with an Austin musician playing the guitar in the back.

Sound design and audio cues will also help tell the story.
